The Bean Bake.

Thursday evening the entertainment given by Pop Thomas Post, G. A. R., came off at the rink as advertised, even the weather lending a helping hand to make the success as complete as possible. The spacious hall was well filled by 9:30, and special interest was taken by the audience in the war relics which were on exhibition on a long table in the front of the rink. These relics consisted of many curiosities and keepsakes which the boys in blue picked up during the war, and which they have kept ever since. Among the many noticeable things was a dagger which was gotten out by Capt. Spaulding in 1861, in Vermont, and which called for recruits and a drummer boy for the regiment; it is now in a frame, and we have no doubt but that Mr. Spaulding values it very highly. Then there was a comb which was manufactured out of a cow's horn by A. E. Veon while he was in prison; also revolvers, guns and bayonets which were picked up on battle fields and brought home as keepsakes. In fact the whole collection was so interesting that it was almost impossible to get up to the table during the greater part of the evening on account of the crowd of spectators. An interesting address was delivered by Mr. C. W. McKay, of Fargo, and Mrs. Davenport interested the audience by a recitation, after which came singing by Messrs. Alderman, Camp, Hitchcock and Congdon, the Brainerd band enlivening the occasion by choice selections. Beans and hard tack were then announced, and the table which extended the full length of the rink was filled three or four times by a hungry crowd. During the evening chances on a large picture were sold by Geo. D. Thompson for the benefit of the post, and the lucky man was M. D. Ford. The dance which followed the entertainment was a very pleasant affair, and the rink floor was filled with merry gliders until early morn, the following being the programme:

Card of Thanks. The ladies of the Brainerd W. C. T. U. extend grateful acknowledgment to all who so generously helped to make a success of the "bean festival" held at the roller rink on the 24th ult. Especial thanks are due the band for the delightful music that contributed so largely to the pleasure of the evening. The entertainment netted the society about 35.00, which will be used for defraying the expenses of the free reading room.

March 3, 1886. NEW HATS for 1886, immense stock now in at Day & Meagher's.

Remembered His Old Friend. It is rumored that among the bequests of the late Leonard Day, of Minneapolis, is a handsome legacy to Heubea Gray, an aged and somewhat eccentric character, who has for years lived as a trader among the Indians at Gull Lake, some miles north of this city. Gray and Day were in olden times most intimate friends, and married the first wives two sisters named McAllister. All lived neighbors in the town of Wesley, Me., on the Mathias river. Both lost those wives, and Gray married another of the sisters, but she too, has long been dead. Both came west about the same time, and went thereafter widely apart in fortunes.

Wines, Liquors, Porter, Ale, Etc. Kentucky Liquor Co., Sixth street, next door to postoffice.

Grand Concert. The young people's literary association of the First M. E. church will give a free public entertainment at the church on Friday evening, March 12. The entertainment will consist of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, readings and songs. One of Mrs. Davis' pianos will be used for the occasion. An excellent programme is prepared, and all who will may come, with the assurance of a pleasant and profitable evening.

Call at Day & Meagher's and see the new things in SPRING HATS.

Free Literary Entertainment. The Y. P. S. C. E., a society recently organized by the young people of the First Congregational church, will give a free literary and musical entertainment in the church on Tuesday evening, March 16th. The programme of choice selections will be rendered by popular local artists, assisted by a minstrel troupe which has been engaged for the occasion. Let every one turn out and encourage the society so recently organized.

Council Meeting. The council met in regular session Monday evening. Attorney Lum reported on the reports of Judge Douglas to January 5, 1886, and of the motion of Alderman Taylor and Howe the reports were accepted. The pay roll of $250 was allowed and also a bill of $12.50 for city treasurer's book. The bill of A. Fredrickson for $14.56 for sign boards for bridges was referred to finance committee. The finance committee reported on the city treasurer's report from March 12, 1885, to March 1, 1886, and found same correct and ordered the same published. The motion of Alderman Howe and Percy the treasurer was instructed to pay the city order which was drawn for interest on water bonds of $2100 and the interest. The council adjourned to meet Thursday evening.

The Election.

Tuesday's election was a surprise to many citizens, although the result is but what might have been expected under the circumstances as they were worked up. In the election of H. J. Small as mayor of the city of Brainerd the citizens have nothing to regret, as he is a man eminently qualified both in character and ability for the position in a very satisfactory manner, and not one of the following of the opposition contradicted it at any time during the campaign. His majority in the city was 147, less than half the majority by which Mr. James Gardner was elected in 1884. The Sleeper campaign was entirely free from any blot, and the methods used in his behalf were of the most gentlemanly order, while on the other hand the evening before election there was issued from the Tribune office a dodger of the most scurrilous and blackmailing order, and which attacked Col. Sleeper's private character in a manner known only to birds of a certain stripe. For the benefit of Mr. Small and his supporters we wish to state that he did not know of the move to circulate such a rotten thing, and condemned it before it got into general circulation and it was suppressed, but another one was gotten out of a milder character. The people condemned it on both sides, and also the print shop from which it was issued.

Mr. Small was elected, and the management of city affairs are in good hands. His policy will not be of such a radical order as many supposed, although in an interview with a DISPATCH scribe he expressed his determination to enforce the ordinances of the city as they stand, using discretion, and being willing to acquiesce to the wishes of a majority of the people. He will receive a hearty support from the people, and has an intelligent council to assist him in the performance of the duties of the office. The following vote will give a clear idea of how the election went:

The Particulars. The sad accident which resulted in the death of Henry B. Chase, at the camp of Chase & Miller, on Quadena Lake, forty miles above Aitkin, on Wednesday last at one o'clock p. m., has become generally known by this time, as the prominence of the deceased, who had spent here for over seven years, made him generally known. It seems that Mr. Chase had only been out in the woods but once before, this winter, his business being to look after supplies and a tend to the financial operations of the firm, but on this occasion with four or five others, he was attempting to down some trees that had lodged upon a tamarack which it had partially uprooted. While directly beneath the tree some of the skidding teams rolled off a heavy log which lay on the roots of the tamarack, and down the whole thing came with a crash. The alarm was given and the rest escaped, but the unfortunate man only looked up as the tree struck him upon the temple. His skull was crushed and he only lived three minutes, never speaking after he was hit. Mrs. Chase as well as Mrs. Miller have been living in Minneapolis from which he will be buried. Some of the extent of the business operations of Chase & Miller may be had from the fact that their operations for this winter represent about $100,000 worth of business. The business will still be conducted by Mr. Miller.—Aitkin Age.

Musical Jokes.

The highest toned member of the band is the after-Kimball's Musical Review.

An accessory before the act, the orchestra—Pittsburg Chronicle.

A lady when playing an allegro movement for a gentleman friend who called, was interrupted with the remark: "You need not hurry on my account, I have plenty of time."

Said a proud singer to Frederick the Great, "I can do any thing with my voice." "Well," said the monarch, seeing the singer's heels were out, "then go home, and mend your stockings with it."

An exchange speaks of the vitality of frogs. We know something of this. We heard a singer twenty years ago. He had a frog in his throat. We heard him again last week. The frog was still alive. Physicians say this is not unusual.—Puck.

Mrs. Homespun is delighted with her son's proficiency upon the pianoforte. "Why," she says, "Johnny can play almost any thing, and he doesn't have to take both hands to it as some of our great players are obliged to do."—Boston Transcript.

Miss Constance. I am so glad you think I've improved in my playing on that nocturne of yours, Herr Bomoliski. I hope to be perfect in it next time we meet. Herr B. (gallantly).— "Ach, Miss Gonschuldne, I hope we shall meet before zat."—London Punch.

The little girl who guessed that the purpose of sermons was "to give the singers a rest," was not far from right. If she was in attendance upon one of our fashionable churches, where religiosity takes the place of religion, and operatic strains that of genuine devotional music, there was a row between an eminent vocal teacher and one of his pupils, recently. After receiving a severe lecture on the sin of flouting in pithy the student assailed his master. In court, it was proven that the singer was at least a minor third below pitch; for the teacher testified pathetically, "I told him to strike so, but he struck me."—Musical Herald.

"I am positively opposed to having a choir in the church," said old Mrs. Piety to her husband, after listening to the half operatic airs of the service. "We have no account of the choir in the days of the apostles."—"No," growled Mr. Piety, sadly, "but you know they had other methods of torture almost as bad."—Newman Independent.

Fond Mamma. "What do you think, Professor? Is there the least possibility that Euphonia will ever make a singer?" Professor Solfado.—"And why not, Mrs. Smith? Your daughter has every reason in the world to hope for success. Some of our greatest artists came from the lowest rank in society."

Wants A House. A subscriber desires to exchange a desirable tract of land containing about 100 acres, for a snug residence property in Brainerd. The land is situated in Central Wisconsin and within three miles and a half of the county seat, a city of 8,000 people, and within 100 rods of the post-office of a thriving village of 400 people. The Wisconsin river bounds the land on the west and the Wisconsin Central railroad on the east, the depot being 40 rods from the same. Parties having desirable property that they wish to exchange can address communications to "H," this office.

The Bean Bake.

Thursday evening the entertainment given by the Post, G. A. R., came off at the rink as advertised, even the weather lending a helping hand to make the success as complete as possible. The spacious hall was well filled by 9.30, and special interest was taken by the audience in the war relics which were on exhibition on a long table in the front end of the rink. These relics consisted of many curiosities and kept the boys in blue picked up during the war, and which they have kept ever since. Among the many noticeable things was a dagger which was gotten out by Capt. Spalding in 1861, in Vermont, and which called for recruits and a drummer boy for the regiment; it is now in a frame, and we have no doubt but that Mr. Spalding values it very highly. Then there was a comb which was manufactured for the benefit of the A. E. Veon while he was in prison; also revolvers, guns and bayonets which were picked up on battle fields and brought home as keepsakes. In fact the whole collection was so interesting that it was almost impossible to get up to the table during the greater part of the evening on account of the crowd of spectators. An interesting address was delivered by Mr. C. W. McKay, of Fargo, and Mrs. Day, expert interest in the audience by a recitation, after which came singing by Messrs. Alderman, Camp, Hitchcock and Congdon, the Brainerd band enlivening the occasion by choice selections. Beans and hard tack were then announced, and the table which extended the full length of the rink was filled three or four times by a hungry crowd. During the evening chances on a large picture were sold by Geo. D. Thompson for the benefit of the post, and the lucky man was M. D. Ford. The dance which followed the entertainment was a very pleasant affair, and the rink floor was filled with merry gliders until early morn, the following being the programme:

1. Grand March..... G. A. R.
2. Quadrille..... Open Order, March
3. Waltz..... Right Wheel
4. Schottische..... Present Arms
5. Schottische..... Right Flank
6. Quadrille..... Left Flank
7. Schottische..... Left Flank
8. Polka..... Left Flank
9. Schottische..... Strapping
10. Schottische..... Left Flank
11. Schottische..... Come and Get Your Quinine
12. Waltz..... Right Flank
13. Schottische..... Right Flank

It is considered that the entertainment was a very successful one, and the post will clear quite a little sum. The gentlemen who had the immediate supervision of the arrangements under control deserve much credit for the manner in which the entertainment was arranged and conducted.

Council Meeting.

The council met in regular session Monday evening. Attorney Lund reported on the reports of Judge Douglas for January 5, 1886, and on motion of Alderman Taylor and Howe the reports were accepted. The pay roll of $250 was allowed and also a bill of $12.50 for city treasurer's book. The bill of A. Fredrickson for 14.66 for sign boards for bridges was referred to finance committee. The finance committee reported on the city treasurer's report from March 12, 1885, to March 1, 1886, and found same correct and ordered the same published. On motion of Alderman Howe and Percy the treasurer was instructed to pay the city order which was drawn for interest on water bonds of $2100 and the interest. The council adjourned to meet Thursday evening.

The Election.

Tuesday's election was a surprise to many citizens, although the result is but what might have been expected under the circumstances as they were worked up. In the election of H. J. Small as mayor of the city of Brainerd the citizens have nothing to regret, as he is a man eminently qualified both in character and ability to fill the position in a very satisfactory manner, and not one of the following of the opposition contended it at any time during the campaign. His majority in the city was 147, less than half the majority by which Mr. James Gardner was elected in 1884. The Sleepers campaign was entirely free from any blot, and the methods used in his behalf were of the most gentlemanly order, while on the other hand on the evening before election there was issued from the Tribune office a dodger of the most scurrilous and blackmailing order, and which attacked Col. Sleeper's private character in a manner known only to birds of a certain stripe. For the benefit of Mr. Small and his supporters we wish to state that he did not know of the move to circulate such a rotten thing, and condemned it before it got into general circulation and it was suppressed, but another one was gotten out of a milder character. The people condemned it on both sides, and also the print shop from which it was issued.

Mr. Small was elected, and the management of city affairs are in good hands. His policy will not be of such a radical order as many supposed, although in an interview with a DISPATCH scribe he expressed his determination to enforce the ordinances of the city as they stand, using discretion, and being willing to acquiesce to the wishes of a majority of the people. He will receive a hearty support from the people, and has an intelligent council to assist him in the performance of the duties of the office. The following vote will give a clear idea of how the election went:

The Particulars.

The sad accident which resulted in the death of Henry B. Chase, at the camp near Chase & Miller, on Quindana Lake, forty miles above Aitkin on Wednesday last at one o'clock p. m., has become known by this time, as the prominence of the deceased, who had operated here for over seventeen years had made him generally known. It seems that Mr. Chase had only been out in the woods but once before, this winter, his business being to look after supplies and a new operation of the trap line. He was on this occasion with four or five others, he was attempting to down some trees that had lodged upon a tamarack which it had partially uprooted. While directly beneath the mass some of the skidding teams rolled off a heavy log which lay on the roots of the tamarack, and down the whole thing came with a crash. The alarm was given and the rest escaped, but the unfortunate man only looked up as the tree struck him upon the temple. His skull was crushed and he only lived three minutes, never speaking after he was hit. Mrs. Chase as well as Mr. Miller have been living at camp this winter, and on Thursday returned with his body to their home in Minneapolis from which he will be buried. Some idea of the extent of the business operations of Chase & Miller may be had from the fact that they had a large stock of winter goods about $100,000 worth of business. The business will still be conducted by Mr. Miller.—Aitkin Age.

Musical Jokes.

The highest toned member of the band is the fife—Kimball's Musical Review.

An accessory before the act, the orchestra.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

A lady when playing an allegro movement for a gentleman friend who called, was interrupted with the remark: "You need not hurry on my account, I have plenty of time."

Said a proud singer to Frederick the Great, "I can do any thing with my voice." "Well," said the monarch, seeing the singer's heels were out, "then go home, and mend your stockings with it."

An exchange speaks of the vitality of frogs. We know something of this. We heard a singer twenty years ago. He had a frog in his throat. We heard him again last week. The frog was still alive. Physicians say this is not at unusual.—Puck.

Mrs. Homespun is delighted with her son's proficiency upon the piano. "Why," she says, "Johnny can play almost any thing, and he doesn't have to take both hands to it as some of our great players are obliged to do."—Boston Transcript.

Miss Constance. I am so glad you think I've improved in my playing on that octave of yours, Herr Bonolski. I hope to be perfect in it next time we meet. Herr B. (gallantly).—Ach, Miss Gonschance, I hope we shall meet before we part.—London Punch.

The little girl who guessed that the purpose of sermons was "to give the singers a rest," was not far from right, if she was in attendance upon one of our fashionable churches, where religiosity takes the place of religion, and operatic strains that of genuine devotional music.

There was a row between an eminent vocal teacher and one of his pupils, recently. After receiving a severe lecture on the sin of flattery in pitch the student assailed his master. In court, it was proven that the singer was at least a minor third below pitch; for the teacher testified pathetically, "I told him to strike sol, but he struck me."—Musical Herald.

"I am positively opposed to having a choir in the church," said old Mr. Piety to her husband, after listening to the half operatic airs of the service. "We have no account of the choir in the days of the apostles."—"No," growled Mr. Piety, sadly, "but you know they had other methods of torture almost as bad."

Fond Mamma.

Professor? Is there the least possibility that Euphemia will ever make a singer?" Professor Solfado.—"And why not, Mrs. Smith? Your daughter has every reason in the world to hope for success. Some of our greatest artists came from the lowest rank in society."
